No doubt the Scribes and Pharisees and salem with whom St. Paul used to associate, were very much down on him after he came back from his trip to Damascus, and after he made known to them his intentions of no longer persecuting the Saints but of joining himself to them and espousing their cause. Saint Paul, however, paid no attention to any insinua tions or denunciations on the part of the first families, but went on his way rejoteing, being willing to bear any amount of obloquy for the sake of the cause he had

Now we do not mean to say by this scriptural allusion, that Woffindin received his hint to quit persecuting the Republican Saints in and around Weston; and to dissolve his political association with the first families there, in the same way that Saint Paul received his hint Woffindin's mind, it would seem, has been undergoing a change for some time past, whereas Saint Paul was con-verted all of a sudden. Every now and Chairman Republican Judicial Co then we read the sermon of some preacher like Prof. Swing, or that Zanesville minister, who, although they come out on some particular Sunday and announce their change of convictions to a suron some particular Sunday and announce their change of convictions to a surprised and unexpecting public, yet in reality the change is not sudden, but a water of weeks and months of prayerful preparation.

Mr. Gray, a law student, with Peter Tallman, one of the appirants for a nomination, wouched for the authenticity of the dispatch, and became eloquent in favor of a nomination. Mr. Hollowed him with some allusions to his dition of mind for some time past:

"Inasmuch as the chivalry have holy horror of the vandals who dared invade the sacred soil of Virginia, it might be well for them to 'pauck up' so to speak. Two-thirds of the business enterprises in the town of Weston are conducted by these same vandals—but doubtless the first families would soon raise up others to their liking. It is 'puffickly howwid' that 'Lincoln hirelings' should gather up ducats which of right should gather up ducats which of right should go to those to the manor born. 'Poffikly awful—so it is!"

The explanation of this paragraph con-

The explanation of this paragraph consists in the fact that Woffindin was one of the "Lincoln hirelings" who with arms in hand invaded this State as a Union soldier during the war. Like many more such "vandals" he fell in love with the scenery and climate of West Virginia, and determined to settle among us after the war. For some reason he fell particularly in love with the valley of the West Fork, probably because, like the plains of the Jordan, it was a well watered country [as he is of the hard-shell Baptist persuasion] or it may be that he admired the Lunatic Asylum and thought it was a good place for a Democratic paper. We do not really know what motives actuated him in coming to Weston. But at all events he pitched his tent at that place and for ten years past has been hard at work puboften during that time he has had qualms of conscience or misgivings of judgment, we will probably never know. He says however that at length he has discovered that a true blue Union man can not find a congenial home in the ranks of the West Virginia Democracy. In other words, that West Virginia Democracy is so largely permeated and infiltrated with the virus of dialoyalty to the Union that a Union man, situated as he has been, feels himself to be a stranger in a strange land within the pale of that organization. It was for this reason, according to his last paper, that he finally concluded to "hang his gate on the other poet," or, in other words, to quit smothering down his feelings and lishing a Democratic paper. As to how quit smothering down his feelings and convictions, and come boldly and patri-ate arily morn is not looked upon with the otically out on the side of Hayes and same delight as it was a few days ago.

The Republican Judicial Convention at Barnesville-Much Excitement and No Nomination. nce of the Intelligencer,

BARNESVILLE, Sept. 5, 1874. W. S. Kennon called the meeting to order by nominating Hon. W. Doherty, of Monroe county, for chairman, which nomination was ratified by the Conven-tion. Mr. Hunt of the Okronicle was chosen Secretary, with Mr. J. B. Longley as Assistant chosen Secretary, with Mr. J. B. Longley as Assistant.

Mr. Kennon moved that all representatives of the press be invited to the platform. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Cope, the counties were called, and the chairmen of the county delegations reported as to their delegations. Wheeling, York, Mead and Wayne townships, in Edmont, were unrepresented. Mouroe county reported her representation full. Mr. Cope requested permission for the Belmont delegation to retire and fill the reacancies in their representation. Granted. Mr. Kennon reported the vacancies left unfilled.

Mr. Cope moved that in voting a ma-ority of the delegates present be suffi-

Mr. Cope moved that in voting a majority of the delegates present be sufficient to carry any question. Carried.

Dr. Cope, of Belmont, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That under existing circumstances we deem it inexpedient to nominate a Republican candidate for Common Pleas Judge, but this action of this Convention is not intended, nor shall it be construed to be an endorsement of any particular candidate.

Dr. Capehart thought this a question of sufficient moment to demand a passing notice. He spoke of the fact that the chance for success of the Republican nominee was enhanced by the division in the ranks of the Democracy. He was unwilling that the impression should be in the ranks of the Democracy. He was unwilling that the impression should be given out by this Convention that the Republican party had no man worthy of being presented as a candidate for Judge of the district. Allusions to Judge Cham of the district. Allusions to Judge Chambers' war record brought hearty applause, giving foretaste of the exciting scenes that were to follow.

Capt. Wilson from Monroe considered the resolution an extraordinary one. The convention had been called to hominate a candidate. He also alluded to Judge Chambers' war record. He said his county had sent their delegation in good faith. They expected to nominate a candidate and to support him. He hoped that the Belmont men would stand with them in giving the people a man to vote for who could unite the Republican party.

Capt, Cope thought that in the light of the history of judicial conventions in the district the resolution was not extraor-dinary, and mentioned instances in sup-port of his position. The effect bethought would be tavorable to the Republicans rather than prejudicial. He deprecated the introduction of politics into questions of a judicial nature. Governor Haves the introduction of politics into questions of a judicial nature. Governor Hayes had been called upon to appoint a Supreme Court Commissioner. He ignored political considerations, and yet he was the man whom the Republicans were proud to point to as their national standard bearer. His remarks were well considered and impressively delivered, and brought frequent and hearty applanse.

Mr. Jones, of Monroe, favored a nomination. He was unwilling to grant that the Democratic party had the advantage of the Republicans in competent men for candidates.

candidates. Capt. Smith, of Belmont, opposed capt. Saint, a better of the masses of the Republican party in the county were not in favor of the convention making one. (Applause.) They would not vote for Judge Chambers. (Storming applause.) The speaker was called to order by the chair, but continued his remarks in a less marginal steps.

The following dispatch was read, and caused great confusion (Mr. Hollowsy, of Belmont, wishing to be informed whether "Ross J. Alexander was the voice of God or of the people)."

"MANTIN'S FERRY Sept. 5.

The Railroad Guide.

Yesterday forenoon, says the Free Press, a young man, whose business it was to sell railroad guides to any one who would buy, found a Jefferson-swenue clothing dealer sitting in an arm chair in front of his door, and after a kindly salute the agent handed out one of his guides and said:
"There is the handlest little book in the world. It contains the name. time the world. It contains the name, time table and route of every railroad in this country."

"I neffer puys no such kind of books," replied the dealer as he glanced through

"But you want that pamphlet my dear But you want that pampinet my dear sir. You look like a man who travels around considerably, and no traveler can get along without one of these guides." "I don't care to guide no railroad," said the dealer, shaking his head and

"I shall neffer go there so long as I am here!" "Well, suppose you want to go to Omaha?"

"Den I don't go."
"What do you do when you want to go to Chicago?" asked the persistent agent.
"I sthays at home."
"Well, suppose you had to go; wouldn't you have to look at a railroad time-table then?

"No, sir. I should go down by der depot, get on der train, buy some apples off der poy, and I should step off in Chicogo like some grease!"
The agent had no further arguments to
